

Black Drake

Written by Serenity

Wednesday, 09 January 2008 01:00 - Last Updated Wednesday, 09 January 2008 01:02

The most unknown of all the drakes.

The black drake is rarely seen, and therefore little is known about this race.

Black drakes, while it is rumored they never attack with their tail, have an amazing ability to hide their presence no matter where they are, this is partial due to their smaller size than the other drakes, as well as being caused by what some have claimed as a "magical aura."

Among other things, black drakes have been known to be able to take immense physical damage and leave completely unscathed.

While not as physically strong or hearty as their counterparts, black drakes have been known to move with incredible agility and grow to be the most powerful masters of magic.

Black drakes are about the size of a human and have the form of a dragon.